All songs written by Jay Moonah except “The Runner Duck” written by Jay Moonah & Attila Baraczka

For the last six years “Broke Fuse” has been a one-man band. Somewhat ironically, the moment I found myself unable to collaborate in-person with other musicians was exactly the time I found myself in need of help bringing my songs to life. Although most of these pieces were written before the 2020 health emergency, I find many have taken on new meaning for me during these trying times.

I am beyond grateful to the amazing people who have contributed so generously to this record, particularly given the strange circumstances. I dedicate it with love to them, as well as to the many friends and family I’m so blessed to have in my life.

Please be well, and I hope that listening to these songs might help blow some of your blues away.
